THE MAINE LAW IN CONNECTICUT.

PLAINFIELD, Windsor Co., Conn., Feb. 20. A very interesting gathering of the Maine-Law people of this County took place this day in the Central Village Church. Owing to detentions of reliway trains in consequence of the storm on Saturday night the attendance was not as large as it otherwise would have been, but still it was larger than was expected. The reports in regard to the operation of the Law were surprisingly favorable and the meeting, as a whole, proved a decided in expenses, in consequence of the diminution

VI. That it costs the State nothing to enforce the law, the fines paid amounting to more than enough to balance costs of prosecution.

A great many gentlemen from the different towns here testimony to these facts, and the reports were all of one tenor, and highly favorable to the law. In this town it was stated that there was only a single pauper and that one an idiot, while prior to the enactment of this law the number of paupers was never less than six, and almost aiways many more, while the population in the past two years had increased 500.

In the evening, able speeches were made by the Rev Mr. Willard of Willimantic, Judge Tyler of Brooklyn, Mr. Tompkins of Norwich, and Chas. C. Eurleigh of Plainfield.

There seemed to be no fear manifested that the law would be deleated in the coming election. The Pierce Democracy and Hunker Whiggery will coalesce and go into partnership with Rum and Slavery for their principle stock in trade; but they are destined to an overwhelming defeat. The Temperance men don't care for the offices and will make no separate nominations, but there will probably he a union of all the Anti-Slavery. Temcisn remarked "all h—l can't beat them."

One of our leading citizens who was active in the prosecutions under the law has had a fine orchard of ore hundred apple trees girdled and ruined by some villain who will find before long that he has waked up the wrong passenger entirely. This inefably mean, dastardly act has aroused a spirit of indignation and anda determination to "put on the screezs" in the minds of the citizens of all parties, that is already producing an effect, and the excitement created by it is doing more for the great cause than any means that its friends could employ.

The Tripens list in this village is much larger than it was last year, and so long as it deals so faithfully with the great moral questions of the day it must continue to increase. QUINEBAUG.

BURLINGTON, Ia., Tuesday, Feb. 12, 1856. Perhaps in account of how the Kansas quesmay be of interest to your many readers. Last evening Marion Hall was filled to overflowing to listen to an address on the present condition s in that Territory, from of thin the passage of the Nebraska bill, and then took the position that the Territorial Government of Kansas, erected on that principle, had proved a failure. This position was maintained by referring to the fact that the settlers of Kansas had never been protected in the exercise of the electoral franchise under that Government; that they had had no voice in constituting their law-making power. The idea of March were memorable in Roman mistory, and the thirtieth of March would never be forgotten in Kansas history. Secondly, the un-The ides of March were memorable in Roman aistory, and the thirtieth of March would never be forgotten in Kansas history. Secondly, the unconstitutional and oppressive character of the laws passed by the Legislature was severely commented upon, and the question put to the audience whether they would obey such laws, even if they come from a proper body, when a thundering no burst forth. Thirdly, there would be no difficulty about the laws were it not for the position of Pierce's satrap in Kansas, Wilson Shannon, backed up by the General Government. Pro-Slavery authority was adduced to show that notwithstanding all this, the laws were a dead letter—that they could not be enforced. The Executive Department of the Government did not possess the power to sustain itself. Also, the Judiciary were doing nothing, as the people kept away from the Courts and let the laws most severely alone. Authorities were read from Pro-Slavery papers to show the utter failure of the whole Government. The Legislative Department had been forced upon the people, and had transcended and outraged its legitimate powers. The Executive Department could not enforce the laws, while the Judicial Department was confounded and unable to meet the crisis. Some interesting facts were made known in regard to the Courts of the Territory.

The spontaneous movement of the people in the

Mr. E. then gave a brief account of the present alarming condition of things in the Territory, and urged the immediate admission of Kansas as a State as the only way to settle the difficulty.

The audience was composed of our most substantial citizens, and resolutions were adopted fully indorsing the cause of Kansas, instructing our Representative in Congress to go for her admission, and pledging Burlington to raise $2,000 to be expended in defraying past expenses in the defense of Freedom there, as well as to provide against all further invasion.

Freedom there, as well as to provide against all further invasion.

On motion of Gov. Grimes, the thanks of the meeting were returned to Mr. E. for his remarks.

We regard Burlington as the strongest hold of Pro-Slavery feeling in our State; and this large meeting, with the Governor presiding, is certainly significant. I learn that large meetings have been held in Quincy, Galesburg, Springfield, and other prominent points in Illinois, on this subject, and that men and money have been raised for the fense of Karass. Every prominent city in the Free States will be visited.

Among the speakers were ex-Gov. Cleveland of Hampton; the Hon. Daniel P. Tyler, late Judge of our County Court; the Hon. S. Lee, present Sonator for the County; Mr. Carpenter, District-Attorney, and various other gentlemen, lawyers, dectors, clergymen, merchants, manufacturers, farmers and mechanics. The following PACTS were alicited and very abundantly proved:

were elicited and very abundantly proved:

1. Nineteen twentieths of the present occupants of the county jail are there in consequence of the sale and use of intoxicating drinks.

11. That the commitments for offences other than for violation of the law have diminished since the law took effect, more than one half.

III. That in all the large cities and villages

duced police.

IV. That notwithstanding the great severity of the season and the extraordinary high prices of fuel and provisions, a time has never been known when there was so little suffering among the poor and so few calls upon public charity.

V. That all the towns are making great savings

The spontaneous movement of the people in the formation of a Constitution was then alluded to by the Speaker, and the objections often urged against this movement conclusively answered.
